Ride Update - Watching the Weather

We wanted to send this update to alert you that we are in contact with the Ride Director of the ride this Saturday and will be staying in touch with them about the weather.

The current forecast varies with Weather.com showing 40% chance of afternoon rain and Accuweather.com showing 40-50% chance beginning in the morning.

We will set up a call with them Friday evening and send an email update and post on our Facebook page, even if there is no change, as well as the Hotline (301-927-9007). If necessary, we will repeat this early Saturday morning and have an update out by 5:30 am.

If you are planning to ride this Saturday, please keep an eye in your inbox this week...

While we're on a reminder kick, here are several other items, in case you missed them or forgot about them...

Kate's Ride - Sat, Feb 26, 8:00 am (Price Increase Tonight!)

How many of you have looked at the HealyDoherty Cycling calendar? It's on our website and now and has the ride start locations/addresses so you can load the files into your calendar. After I loaded a ride into my calendar, it showed up on my iPhone as an event offered to give me fun by fun directions!

If you look at the calendar, you may have noticed that we don't have a ride scheduled on Feb 24. This is because some of us (88 have the and/or plan to participate in the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo (Formerly ConocoPhillips) Rodeofest. Marshall and I spent many years (until last year) on the Steering Committee of this great event and we kept the date open so many of our riders can participate and Spring Break is starting at this time for some of you.

Don't worry about developing RWS (Ride Withdrawal Syndrome) because several ConocoPhillips cyclists established Kate's Ride several years ago to benefit victims of spinal cord injuries. Most of the ride organizers team with HealyDoherty Cycling as they offered the following benefits to our riders:
